#1 Functions

When declaring a function in js we use function as a type and one of the key things about a function declaration is, it is hoisted. (when this runs it sends it to the top)

Functions can be written in multiple different ways:
They can be written as function expressions that can be passed around.

One way you can use the ~~the~~ arrow functions is;

```
const sayHi = () => console.log("Hi");

You going to see functions that look like this a lot
